

January 01, 2012

To Whom It May Concern:

In August 2008, the US Congress passed the Consumer Product Safety Improvement Act of 2008 (CPSIA). The CPSIA has multiple provisions, which are scheduled to take effect over a three-year period. The portions of the law applicable to our industry deal primarily with products designed for and / or intended for use by children. The law includes language defining a child as age 12 or younger.

Bullet Line's products are designed to meet applicable Federal regulations. Our products are not designed for, or intended for use by children, however, under this new law some items may fall under the revised definition of a children's item. Approved 3rd party laboratories are currently evaluating those items for compliance with ASTM F963-07, and we have 3rd party certificates attesting to their compliance with the law.

Certificate of Conformity - Effective November 12, 2008, importers of product that are subject to a consumer product safety rule shall certify based upon a reasonable testing program that such product complies with all regulations applicable to the product under the Act. Bullet Line is using Certificates of Compliance for applicable products imported and / or manufactured after the effective date to document these certifications.

Lead in Paint - The CPSIA has changed the acceptable levels of Lead in Paint and surface coatings for all consumer products from less than 600ppm to less than 90ppm effective August 2009. Bullet Lines products with painted surfaces are, and will continue to be in compliance with the applicable rules.

As always, Bullet Line is committed to applying the highest standards of safety for its products. In order to meet both the needs of our customers and the regulatory requirements of the markets we serve and Bullet Line requires all products purchased to meet our design specifications. Those specifications are reviewed and revised as necessary. We take all necessary steps to ensure that our products meet Federal product regulations and require our suppliers to obtain required permits and / or approvals from appropriate US Federal agencies.

Specific questions related to these policies and procedures may be directed to our Trade Compliance Department at compliance@bulletline.com.

Bob Herzog

President